1. Hair

I set the hair of an animal that imitates the legs and antennae of a crayfish. The material is slightly taut, assuming the texture when the bass bites into an actual crayfish. The water-pushing effect of the soft plastic body and the vibrations peculiar to natural materials are intricately intertwined, creating a more realistic sense of life. It also acts as a balancer that maintains a stable posture underwater.

2. Material

We are strongly conscious of the texture, weight, and texture peculiar to crayfish immediately after molting when adjusting the ingredients related to the content of resin and salt, which are the raw materials. The flavor that triggers a bite and holds it for a long time is "Vise Mix" that contains multiple natural ingredients such as fish and crustaceans. Since it is well kneaded into the ingredients, the taste and odor effect will not deteriorate even if you continue to use it.

3. Body

A slightly constricted design to create ideal movements and vibrations. The wave motion generated by other parts and the large vibration of the body part are intricately intertwined, creating a more realistic sense of life. The ribs on the back side make it easy to hold the air and appeal by diffuse reflection in water. Realistically produce female crayfish and macrobrachium that hang eggs. In addition, because of its large surface area, it has an excellent flavor diffusion effect.

4. Craw

Instead of just making it real, I considered the volume feeling that grabs the water and acts. The thick flat part reliably catches the weak water flow, and the thin inner part vibrates slightly to invite the bite. In addition, since the resistance is extremely large compared to the body, it is possible to produce a pose that raises the claws and threatens when landing after a fall.

5. Antenne

A slightly longer antenne than general hog soft baits. His tight vibration during swimming and natural movement during stay attract the bass. Also, compared to the body and claws that generate torque waves, this part creates a delicate and light stream of water. These different waves are intricately intertwined, emphasizing their unique presence in the water.
