It is a soft bait that thoroughly pursues flight distance, operability, and power to move water, embodying the conclusion that "bass likes round things" drawn by Masahiro Ogogo and bait breath through many years of research and experience. By providing two holes in the tail to firmly grasp the water, intense vibration is generated during swimming and falling. This vibration makes the bass aware of its existence, and the force of the sphere makes it use its mouth. Although the size is 2 inches, the weight is concentrated on the rear, achieving class-leading castability. Even if you set a 1/32 oz jig head, you can get the same operability as 1/16 oz. It matches all types of rigs, including jig head rigs, no sinker rigs, down shot rigs, split shot rigs, and light Texas rigs. Uses claw fish flavor. Seven colors are available, mainly natural.

Masahiro Ogomori: "Castability, high operability, and strong vibration of the ball tail are the points. It is useful in situations where you want to approach with a distance so as not to be wary of the bass, or when using it as a search bait to explore a wide range. The hypothesis of preferring spheres was proved by the 50cm over of Lake Tanzawa caught during the test. "
