The Giant Trevally, or GT, is the largest representative of the Caranx genus and can grow to around 80kg in weight and nearly six feet in length. It is an apex predator in much of its distribution and can be widely found in the Indo-Pacific region. The species feeds mainly on fish, cephalopods and crustaceans but has been known to consume sea birds. Thanks to its strength and agility, the Giant Trevally is very popular amongst anglers.
