Hiroyuki Motoyama is a leading bass fishing expert. Mr. Motoyama is also highly knowledgeable about trout fishing in mountain streams, and he has long searched for a spinner that satisfies him. After more than 10 years of trial and error, he finally perfected a spinner that satisfied him: the AR-S (AR Spinner).

The AR-S was designed to achieve incredible blade rotation performance, allowing the lure to start spinning as soon as it hits the water.

The AR-S blade generates strong vibrations and has stable rotation even in strong currents, demonstrating its performance immediately after hitting the water and quickly appealing to the target. The ARS blade has a slight raised section on its edge, which improves the blade's rotation performance and assists in quick start-up.

The AR-S blade's incredible start-up reliably expands the narrow productive zone in mountain streams, significantly increasing the chances of a bite when targeting pin-spot fish.

Another feature is that it responds to rod work while reeling, allowing you to create a left-right sliding motion with a twitch.

In addition to making short-distance fishing possible, the use of a rolling swivel shaft with a swivel structure has also succeeded in reducing line twist. Furthermore, the stable, low-center-of-gravity teardrop-shaped body and the clearance provided between the body and shaft further reduce line twist.
