Opis / Description

Galeocerdo cuvier

120 cm

The Tiger Shark (Galeocerdo cuvier) is an apex predator and the largest of the 270 or so species of Carcharhiniformes or ground sharks. Growing to around 800 kg and around 5 meters in length, this large shark feeds on fish, including other sharks, crustaceans, birds and even turtles. Found in tropical and subtropical waters around the world, it is a solitary hunter that feeds primarily at night. Due to its size, it is considered one of the most dangerous shark, but overfishing and pollution of its habitat threatens its future.
